Current role	Director, Michèle Taylor Ltd : trainer, coach and facilitator with additional experience in research and evaluation
Areas of expertise	<ul style="list-style-type: none"> <li>• Disability Equality Training and general equality and diversity training and support</li> <li>• Individual and group support through coaching, facilitation and organisational development skills</li> <li>• Particular experience in the arts and cultural industries</li> <li>• I am a disabled person and a lesbian and train on these issues from the perspective of authentic experience</li> </ul>
Brief biography	I trained to be a teacher before moving on to work in the theatre. In the early '90s I began to develop my role as a Disability Equality Trainer and have a national and international reputation for training and supporting arts organisations to work towards embedded equality. My equality and diversity work has broadened in response to the policy environment. I have been a key speaker at conferences in the UK and abroad, speaking, for example, on disabled people's access to cultural activity and on equality principles within museums. I work as a coach and organisational development consultant, bringing my training experience and facilitation expertise to these roles; I support teams and organisations to realise equality and celebrate diversity within the context of individual and corporate development.
